PHILADELPHIA, May 6, 1876.

The principal feature of interest here is, of course, the Centennial Exposition. Already many strangers are in town, and every pleasant day thousands of people visit the ground and buildings, and watch with eager interest the busy workmen opening and arranging the articles for exhibition. Everything in Philadelphia is Centennial. The apple woman on the street corner offer for sale Centennial fruit; while Centennial cigar stores, barber shops, clothing stores, hotels, and in fact every kind of business seems to have something in connection with the "Nation's Grand Jubilee." The quiet, solid old city has awakened to a new life. Flags of every color and nationality wave a welcome from window and house-top and every Philadelphian walks along with an air of pride, as if the

GRAND AFFAIR

Was directly controlled by him. It is difficult to imagine the changes that have been wrought at the Centennial grounds in so short a time. Where but a few months ago was nothing but a portion of our beautiful Fairmount Park, is now a miniature city. The five principal buildings, viz: Main Building, Machinery Hall, Memorial Hall, Horticultural Hall and Agricultural Building rise in their grandeur above everything else, but in all directions buildings of every size have been and are being built. Directly outside the exhibition grounds are a number of LARGE HOTELS.

Besides the hundreds of small ones, each capable of accommodating from one to thirteen hundred guests. To own a hotel here this Summer seems to be a sure road to fortune, and as usual, everybody is trying to travel that road. There has been much discussion in the papers published in other cities regarding the ability to accommodate the throng that will undoubtedly be here this Summer, and a question of still greater importance, that of exorbitant charges for meals and lodging has been raised. Some of the larger hotels will probably increase their rates and a visitor so desiring can have abundant opportunity to be fleeced to his heart's content. If however strangers will take a little pains to acquaint themselves with the condition of affairs before they come, there will be no difficulty of this score. Philadelphia has long been noted as a

"CITY OF HOMES,"

And preparations are being made to throw these homes open to visitors at reasonable rates. The expectation that each succeeding day will be more noticeable for an increase of arrivals in the number of exhibits placed in position in the Exhibition building is being fully realized. In every department increased activity prevails, and it would be difficult to select any particular section for special comment on the progress being made. That the grounds themselves and the various approaches will be in good order before the opening day there can be very little doubt. The scene in Machinery Hall is now truly

BEWILDERING.

The eye is confused by the sight of innumerable huge machines in various stages of erection, and the ear deafened by the constant hammering and filing of machinists; this added to the labor of those engaged in unloading the cars as soon as they arrive inside the building, makes up a scene as wonderful as it is animated. Great machines are being rapidly put up which will prove no insignificant rivals to the famous Corliss engine. At present a large number of workmen are engaged in polishing and oiling its various portions, which is about all that can be done towards beautifying this Titanic monster. In the Main Building the progress seems incredible, numerous spaces that that were vacant a few days since are now occupied by handsome show cases ready for the reception of their intended contents. This

MARVELOUS TRANSFORMATION

Is particularly noticeable in the French, Danish and American divisions. The Japanese, who have been resting here for a while, recommenced operations with unwonted vigor, and will doubtless have a large portion of their exhibits uncased in the course of the present week. They have an enormous show and bid fair to overshadow in importance the exhibits of their Chinese neighbors. China, however, will make no mean display if the quantity of their exhibits is any criterion of their quality. The different British Colonies have decided through their commissioners to encircle their department with a handsome partition having an elegant arched entrance. The New South Wales department have just received intelligence of the arrival in New York of two hundred and nine packages which contain the balance of their exhibits. The

NORWEGIAN COURT

Is singularly complete and interesting in its arrangements. Several large trophies will cause much astonishment at the materials of which they are constructed and admiration at the ingenuity and taste displayed in their erection. The largest will be a representation made up of iron implements and the like of a Viking ship, with a figure of a Scandinavian warrior at the mast. There will be a trophy of silver, another of beautiful furs, and a very large one made up of the different textile fabrics of the country. Besides these the exhibits will consist chiefly of specimens of steel manufactures, silver ware, wood carving and carriage building; a pair of snow shoes very tastefully ornamented, are exhibited. In the

BRITISH DEPARTMENT

The most important show at present made is in the earthenware and pottery wares generally. The number of exhibitors of this branch of manufacture is very large and the specimens shown are very fine. Most of the structures thus far erected in the United States section belong to Philadelphia exhibitors, and of these the drug and chemical dealers are taking the lead both in regard to the number and beauty of show cases, and to taking time by the fore-lock in already arranging goods in the latter. A Boston exhibitor gives prominence to his case by having a model of Bunker Hill Monument on top of it. An attractive feature more noticeable in this section in any other, is the construction of certain cases and enclosures out of the same material of which the exhibits within them consist. A Pittsburg firm has a structure of

ELABORATELY WROUGHT IRON,

Within it being specimens of almost everything that has ever been constructed of that article. This feature is confined principally to the exhibitors of marble, pottery, iron, and cabinet ware. The contrast between the various exhibits is very great; now one sees a statue of Terpsichore, and the next thing he looks upon is a tombstone; now an Egyptian Mosque, and side by side with it an ice-cream counter, the strongest contrasts continually presenting themselves until the visitor leaves the building. A New York firm has erected one of four which they will exhibit; it is of granite and weighs thirty-five tons. The French workmen are gradually veiling themselves from the habits acquired in the old country, and each carries on more than two bottles of wine to his daily avocation, when at intervals, he throws his head back and inverts the uncorked bottle over his mouth, the mouths of Yankee and English artisans water not a little. Under the dome of Memorial Hall, the enormous statue representing

SARCOPHAGI

"AMERICA,"

Is put into its place on a large pedestal. This statue is of terra cotta, and is furnished to the Commissioners by an English pottery firm. A large number of works of art are now stored in the side rooms. The ornamental iron doors for the entrance are of fine design, and will be in their places by the end of this week. This Memorial Hall will be truly a worthy monument of the great Centennial year. The Japanese Pavilion is far enough advanced to enable one to form some idea of what it will be when finished. The portion erected is of white pine, and comprises a number of uprights, grooved around at intervals and varnished with shellac, so as to resemble bamboo. These are connected at the top by means of cross pieces corniced with cane, and displaying carvings of a species of tree leaf. The spaces between the uprights are filled with muslin previously soaked in dissolved glue. Upon this will be pasted odd-looking wall paper, an article which is a specialty in Japanese manufacture. As the time for opening the Exposition approaches, the various buildings are being hastened to completion, and there is no doubt that all the essential work will be done by the tenth of May, which is the opening day. That day will be one to be long remembered, all places of business will be closed, the city will be literally covered with bunting and the citizens will give themselves entirely up to the visiting hosts.

H. B.

CONGRESS INVOKED.

By Stockholders of the Central Pacific to Investigate the Affairs and Transactions of Stanford & Co.—An Interesting Document Forwarded to Washington.

The S. F. Post says that John R. Robinson, the plaintiff in the big suit recently brought against Stanford & Co., and numerous other defendants, in the Fourth District Court, and Anthony Coolot and Anthony Egt, have joined in a petition which has already been forwarded to Washington, asking that Congress appoint a Joint Committee, to sit in San Francisco during the recess, to inquire into the affairs of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, the firm of Charles Crocker & Co., and the Contract and Finance Company. The petition sets forth, among a great many other things that are not new to the public, that Robinson became a stockholder in the Central Pacific Railroad in 1862, and the other petitioners in 1864. That the portion of the road built by the Union Pacific, lying between Ogden and Promontory Point, has been purchased, and is now owned and operated by the Central Pacific, making the total length of the road from Sacramento about 740 miles; that

THE NET EARNINGS OF THE CENTRAL PACIFIC,

From May 8, 1869, when it first began to be operated over its whole length, to December 31, 1875, were about $40,000,000. That it will be found, if an examination be made by competent engineers, that the whole line of road built by the Central Pacific can be completed, according to the manner in which it was built, for a sum not to exceed $35,000,000. That most of the delay and stoppage of business on the road during the past Winter was caused by the

INFERIOR CHARACTER OF ROAD-BED,

Rails and ties thereon, the same not being of sufficient strength to bear the weight of the snow-plows necessary to be used in removing snow from the track; and that to put the road in good order, and bring it up to the standard of a first-class road, so that passenger trains could pass over it with safety at the ordinary rates of speed at which such trains are moved on main roads in New York, Pennsylvania or Massachusetts would require an immediate expenditure of about two and a half millions of dollars.

That at the time of the original incorporation of the Central Pacific, and for some time prior and subsequent thereto, Leland Stanford, in partnership with a brother, carried on business as oil merchants, that Huntington and Hopkins were partners in the hardware business, and that Charles Crocker was in the business of retailing calico, tape, pins and needles. That for the years 1860, 1861 and 1862, the managers of the Central Pacific made return under oath, as required by law, to the Assessor of Sacramento county, of the property owned by them:

WHAT STANFORD & CO. WERE WORTH FIFTEEN YEARS AGO.

	1860	1861	1862
L. Stanford & Bro.	$ 53,788	$ 43,730	$ 32,350
Charles Crocker	26,750	29,150	25,450
Mark Hopkins	14,300	19,900	9,700
C. P. Huntington	8,300	9,600	7,225
Huntington & Hopkins	15,430	21,405	34,116
	$119,250	$117,835	$109,340

That with the moneys acquired from the earnings of the Central Pacific, Stanford & Co. are now building the railroad known as the Southern Pacific, and they claim to own the same, irrespective of the stockholders of the Central Pacific. That Stanford & Co. claim that all the depot grounds, town sites, water tanks and sources of supply of water along the Central Pacific road are owned by them in private ownership, although the same are nearly in almost every instance situate upon lands granted by Congress to the company; and they claim to own the lands and buildings in San Francisco, used by the company as offices. The petitioners further represent that by reason of having the control of such large sums of money and property, Stanford & Co. possess great influence, and have, so far, succeeded in preventing Congress or any State legislative body from inquiring into

THEIR WICKED AND DISHONEST PRACTICES;

And that they have expended large sums of money to influence legislation in their favor, and to prevent the passage of adverse measures, both in Congress and in the Legislature of this State, and it is their boast that, by the use of money, no legislation adverse to them can be had. The petitioners say that they have often demanded from Stanford & Co. an account of their acts and dodges in the premises, and to be paid what might be rightfully due to them, as their proportion of the earnings and profits of said railroads; but they have refused to account to the petitioners or to pay to them their share of their earnings and profits, and have accused the petitioners of trying to levy blackmail upon them because they made these demands.

The petition avers that although the petitioners have a remedy at law, to enforce their rights in the premises, and the courts of this State are presided over by honorable and learned Judges, yet they are all men of small means, and Stanford & Co., having the control of so much money, and having in their employment a large staff of eminent counsel,

THE DELAYS OF THE LAW

Can be invoked to hinder and prevent the petitioners from establishing their rights, except at a cost that would be beyond their ability to pay. They therefore approach "the supreme law-making power of the nation," claiming that the interests of the Government are identical with their own, inasmuch as the Government is entitled to five per cent on the net earnings of the road from the time of completion, and it is of importance to it to determine what charges are properly deductible from the gross earnings, so as to arrive at the true sum of the net earnings. And if the property and earnings of the Southern Pacific belong to the Central Pacific, then such earnings will largely increase the amount which should be paid to the Government.

AN INVESTIGATION ASKED FOR.

The documents concluded as follows: "And your petitioners humbly pray that your honorable bodies will appoint a committee of your two houses, to sit in the city of San Francisco during your adjournment, with full power to take testimony, and inquire into the affairs of said railroad company, said firm of Chas. Crocker & Company, and said Contract and Finance Company; and that all legislation now proposed by the managers of said railroad company may be postponed until after such committee shall have reported the true facts in the premises. And your petitioners undertake and promise to establish and make good all the averments and allegations in this petition contained."

A SMART BOY.—A young man called on his intended the other evening, and while waiting for her to make an appearance he struck up a conversation with his intended brother-in-law. After a while the boy asked:

"Does galvanized niggers know much?"

"I really can't say," answered the amused young man, and silenced reigned for a few moments, when the boy resumed:

"Kin you play checkers with your nose?"

"No, I have not acquired that accomplishment."

"Well, you'd better learn, you hear me?"

"Why?"

"Cause, Sis says that yer don't know as much as galvanized nigger, but that yer dad's got lots o' stamps, and she'll marry you anyhow; and she said when she got hold of the old man's sugar she was agoin' to all of the Fourth of July perchesions an' ice cream gum sucks, and let you stay at home to play checkers with that hollyhock nose of yours."

And when Sis got her hair fixed and came in she found the parlor deserted by all save her brother, who was tying the tails of two kittens together and singing: "O, how I love the Sabbath-school."

R. P. HOSMER, Secretary of the Amazon and Glasgow mines, is missing. President of the companies admits that he has left his accounts in a bad shape, and it is rumored he is a defaulter to the amount of several thousand dollars. The Board of Directors are now engaged in examining his accounts.

NEW TO-DAY.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

THE ADVERTISEMENT OF THE CARSON SOAP WORKS which appears in today's STATE JOURNAL was composed and written by me before ever the manager or workman of the Carson Soap Works knew what a piece of soap was. I am surprised at L. J. Greenlaw appropriating an advertisement written by a person not having charge of the educational interests of a certain portion of our State. Were I connected with institutions of learning I would not appropriate the simple composition of a boy's notion of soap, endeavoring to advance my own interests. P. M. MULCAHY.
